Book Review
 by
 USCF Life Master
 Peter Cleghorn

Grandmasters of Chess
 Harold C. Schonberg
 Lippincott, $10.00

This is an admirable coffee-table book about, and possibly for chessplayers. There are 32 games ranging from Captain Smith-Philidor to Spassky-Fischer match game #3. Most chessplayers will be familiar with the majority of the games reprinted here, but there are other reasons for having the book. Mr. Schonberg, music critic for the New York Times, has dredged up quite a few interesting facts, many from the Time's morgue. There are some amusing accounts of banquet speeches that Morphy had to sit through, one even including a poem by James Russell Lowell featuring an incredible pun. (Would you believe, ~~Met-a-Morphysis~~.) Other legends are filled out: Lasker's cigars, Zukertort, Steinitz and their battles via chess columns. As might be expected, Schonberg's knowledge of Music is in evidence; I found the chapter on Philidor fascinating. It's nice to know that one of his operas is a setting of "Tom Jones", also that Zukertort studied piano with Moscheles. One of his musical analogies I must quarrel with however, Sam Loyd the "Bach and Beethoven rolled together?" I'd say Charles Ives is more like it.

The book also features a number of excellent photographic reproductions of the heroes of chess, many of which I haven't seen before.

The Ten Commandments
 Revised for Tournament Players

- 1) I am the T.D., thy Final Authority; thou shalt have no other authority before me.
- 2) Honor thy Tournament Committee; that thy days on the tournament circuit may be long and thy playing conditions may be pleasant.
- 3) Remember the round times, to keep them wholly.
- 4) Thou shalt not take the name of thy T.D. in vain by asking him irrelevant questions while he observeth time-pressure games.
- 5) Thou shalt not steal time from thy T.D. while he maketh thy pairings; that thy opponent be some manner of fish, and not strong.
- 6) Thou shalt not commit adulteration of thy scoresheet after thy opponent's flag has fallen, save at the request of thy T.D.
- 7) Thou shalt not kill thy opponent, unless thou canst prove

- 8) Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy opponent by omitting repeated moves from thy scoresheet.
- 9) Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's board, nor his clock, nor his Chess Digest Magazine nor anything that is thy neighbor's.

AND FINALLY "BEHOLD". FOR IT IS THE GREATEST COMMANDMENT:

- 10) Thou shalt remember, that, in the final analysis, it's only a game,, that thou loseth not thy temper, thy sanity and the respect of all the players that come to live in the Tournament.

PRISONER REHABILITATION FUND - CLEVELAND CHESS FOUNDATION
 Box 5268 - Cleveland, Ohio 44101 - phone 432 2924

Several years ago I sent a few books on chess to the inmates of the Arizona State Prison. They had an active chess group and I was soon sending books there regularly. Then, I heard from California institutions and began sending books, magazines, sets, boards, etc. to institutions from California to New York and Minnesota to Georgia. The number of requests for help exceeded my ability to assist. I applied for Donations and then I organized the Cleveland Chess Fund by incorporating in Ohio as a non-profit organization. Donations to the Cleveland Chess Fund are tax-deductible. As word got around I received many more requests for help. The Prisoner Rehabilitation Fund could become a powerful force, but only if you help. The Prisoner Rehabilitation Fund has been established in Ohio alone. In the past we have helped hundreds of inmates, but now we have the opportunity to help thousands. Kam Fong is working on a National Chess Project to help prisoners and is publishing a Bulletin for them. He needs your support. Please try to send money at once. No amount is too small. The next time you think about entering a chess tournament, consider staying home and send us the amount of the entry fee. If you have the chance to play in just one tournament you will afford hundreds of hours of enjoyment of the game for some other person. Let's help him use this time constructively. If we send him a month of chess books he will be using his mental facilities in a useful way. In order to play chess a person must reason correctly. If he begins to reason correctly he will continue to do so in other areas and has a much better chance of going straight after being released from prison. This is a fact which has been repeatedly proven by statistics compiled by prison officials. I note that more prisoners are being allowed to play in events on the outside. This is an immediately exciting experience for the prisoner. A chance to live again in the real world! To be accepted as an expert and judged by his fellow inmates on his behavior as a prisoner and a chess player. We need money to pay the tournament expenses for these players. Many prisoners sent to play chess, but we need money to pay for leagues, dues and postage. In addition to money, please send us your old chess books, magazines, sets, boards, etc. We also accept books that are left over from chess sets.

CHESS IN PRISON - William J. Couture
 We have about 52 chess players at Norfolk Check Mate Chess Club but we do not have enough chess sets and boards, or books. The Cleveland Chess Foundation has helped us, but it needs many more donations.
 Chess is an exercise of the mind. A person playing chess, whether novice or expert, must think for himself. MEM OF OUR CHESS PLAYERS GET INTO TROUBLE BY BEHAVING THE RULES HERE AT KENRICK INSTITUTION. Players that learned chess behind the large grey walls stick with the game. When they receive their chance at freedom, very few of them break their parole or commit another crime.
 Our chess club meets on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Those that arrive first use the sets, while others must wait for their chance to play. Exhibiting doesn't exist. These men have the greatest respect for the opportunity to play chess and it is so quiet you could hear a pin drop. Any person that can send small pieces to the Cleveland Chess Foundation should do so. We can fix up any broken pieces and boards.
 Every person that donates $5.00 or more will receive the super "ELITE" Chess Bulletin.
