

TALENTED

Sirs:

I have often wished to have some publication on the subject of chess, and was quite pleased with a copy of the REVIEW which a friend let me look through. The Picture Guide to Chess interests me also, as I am a member of the lowliest choir of amateurs with a definite talent for easing a king into situations that must surely be capable of eliminating barbers from the lives of people like Marshall, Fine, et al., by making them remove their own hair with their own clutching fingers.
