FISCHER, RESHEVSKY CLOSELY MATCHED

U.S. chess champion Bobby Fischer evidently has a worthy foe in former champion Samuel Reshevsky in their current match. They were 16-game tied up after seven games with apiece three wins two and draws.

The fifth game went to Fischer, as had been anticipated after the first session, giving him a one-game lead. This the Fischer maintained when draw. The opening was identical to the fourth game. There was some rather aimless maneuvering, with no advantage to either side. The seventh

The seventh game was only three moves longer, but had a much more dramatic ending. Reshevsky gained a little advantage in the early play. Fischer advanced his king rook pawn, which turned out to be weak.

When Reshevsky built up an attack against the pawn, Fischer planned a counter on the other wing. But an unfortunate rook move allowed Reshevsky's queen to penetrate with a multitude of threats after Fischer made the long-range capture. The one move was all sufficient and Fischer capit. all-sufficient, and Fischer capit-

all-sufficient, and Fischer capitulated at once.
