

"Chess players do not become rich, not by a long shot, but this chess player has been amply repaid in more than mere wealth. This book is in the way of a tribute to the great number of fine friends I have made all over the world, men and women who have found, as I have, that chess transcends all barriers and creates true friendship."

ADVENTURES OF

Koltanowski, the master mind of the chess board, takes the reader on a unique world tour in this extraordinary book. His anecdotes are amusing and stimulating, his chess diagrams are informative, and his reminiscences are delightfully personal and nostalgic.

About the blindfold game of chess, in which art he is recognized as unofficial world champion, he says —

“The scores made by blindfold experts may be expected to attain 75% of the maximum. How do they accomplish this? I have been searching for the answer to this question throughout my whole chess career and can only report that every blindfold player develops his own technique of retaining positions in his mind. One memorizes all of the moves made in each game; another has a photographic mind; a third insists that he himself doesn’t know how he can manage to do as well as he does.”

Koltanowski himself has played as many as thirty-four blindfold games simultaneously, winning twenty-four and drawing ten in thirteen and a half hours of play.

A CHESS MASTER

The critics say:

Boston Sunday Globe — Lyman Burgess

“This lively book amuses, entertains, informs and instructs. Among its many virtues are light, bright games with succinct, simple notes, and witty, complete accounts of Master K’s travels.”

Milwaukee Journal — Averill Powers

“Adventures of a Chess Master by George Koltanowski (McKay) is an entertaining, anecdotal account of the blindfold champions experiences in his many world tours. His fascinating stories are interwoven with countless illustrative games.”

The Toronto Telegram — Malcolm Sim

“A book by Koltanowski is something special on one of the most colorful, and certainly the most traveled careers in modern chess. There is entertainment on each of its 194 pages.”

Hartford Courant — G. E. Avery

“This is a new book by George Koltanowski, International Wizard of Blindfold Chess. A history of blindfold chess is given, also Mr. Koltanowski’s efforts along this line in all parts of the world. An especially interesting book for those who have followed his exhibitions.”

Seldom has a book on chess received such rave notices from the working press and such spontaneous outbursts of appreciation from the buying public. ADVENTURES OF A CHESS MASTER makes a wonderful gift for any chess fan. This book teaches while it entertains, with its many stories, anecdotes, games and adventures.
