RESHEVSKY WINS ISRAELI TOURNEY

Samuel Reshevsky of Spring Valley, N.Y., the only American representative, scored 10½-2½ to win the international chess tournament in Israel, according to a report from the New York Times.

In the final round, played in Tel Aviv, Reshevsky was matched with his chief rival, Laszlo Szabo of Hungary. Szabo had somewhat the better of the maneuvering in the opening, a King's Indian Defense adopted by Reshevsky.

In the middle stage Reshevsky was gaining the ascendancy, but time pressure entered the picture and the moves on both sides were lacking in steadiness. At adjournment time Szabo was a pawn ahead in a rook ending.

Upon resumption of the game Reshevsky approached his task with confidence. He shortly sacrificed a second pawn to bring about a position in which Szabo found it impossible to win.

Reshevsky's final score comprised eight games won and five drawn. Szabo was runner-up with 10-3. He also lost no games, having defeated seven opponents and drawn with six.

Raaphy Persitz of Israel finished in third place with 8-5, a respectable distance below the grandmasters. In a tie for fourth at 7½-5½ were Itchak Aloni of Israel and Robert G. Wade of New Zealand.

The tournament was arranged by the Israel Chess Federation to commemorate the founding of the Jewish homeland 10 years ago. Following is the final standing of the players and some forceful examples of Reshevsky's play:
